To describe this composition merely as a vase would be sacrilege. Instead, the Chinese lady's delicate, narrow face, the artfully coiffed hair, the graceful posture and the drape of her robes reveal that the creator of this group of Chinese figures must have been a master craftsman. Conrad Linck was indeed one of the foremost model makers of his time. Many of his pieces, which he also designed for Porzellan Manufaktur Frankenthal, are still produced to this day in Nymphenburg.
